Judge Davis can save four more years on the fence
If the increase in the cost of the government to the amount of 30 millions a year, is what the Democrats call economy, the country doesn't want any more of it.
During this campaign, what the Democrats lack in strength they will make up in brag. They have done this for the last twenty years so that no one need be alarmed.
It is said of Mr. English, the Democratic candidate for Vice President, that when he gave the one dollar for the Chicago fire sufferers, he never asked for any change.
Senator Wadsworth, of Minnesota, will make tenor speeches in Ohio during the campaign. He is a strong speaker, and does a great deal of good by appealing to the enlightened judgment and good sense of his hearers.
Democratic economy has made the cost of the government about four millions of dollars more than it was ten years ago, when the Republicans had control of the two houses of Congress. True figures make out Democratic economy to be a queer thing.

The Democrats can settle the Sarratt case themselves. One wing of the party charges Hancock with taking an active part in having the unfortunate woman, while another wing attempts to defend him. This is their own funeral, and they must settle it among themselves.
The statesmanlike qualities in General Hancock in which the Democrats take such a deep pride, was the conspiracy entered into by him in 1857 to defeat the reconstruction laws. For the part he played in that scheme he was promised the nomination in 1863, but the promise was then broken, and now he has his reward.

The two parties go before the country this year on what they have done or failed to do. The Republican party goes before the country with a record grander than that which ever before crowned a political party; and the Democratic party has nothing to show but broken promises, and all the baneful results of the civil war.
We publish in another column a card from an esteemed fellow citizen, Mr. R. T. Pember, in regard to his candidacy for the office of Sheriff. There are a good many persons who will regret his declination. When Mr. Pember was Sheriff in 1863-4, and 1871-2, he did the country much valuable service, and by his diligence, good judgment, and courage, made one of the best officers ever elected to that important position. He served in all respects with such faithfulness as to gain the confidence and good will of all fair-minded men in the country.

The July Atlantic brings the last chapters of Mr. Howells's "Unsettled Country," which is generally conceded to be the greatest novel he has yet written, with its exquisite descriptions of Shaker life, and its wise and thoughtful treatment of spiritualism. In "The Stillwater Tragedy," Mr. Aldrich describes a "strike" very forcibly, and brings his hero and heroine into closer relations. Richard Grant White's second article on the plot and characters of "King Lear" will charm all lovers of Shakespeare. Artists and admirers of original and noble character will enjoy Dr. Angell's fourth chapter of "Reminiscences of W. M. Hunt." Lovers of the theatre will find no little interest in J. Brander Matthews's article on "A French Comic Dramatist." Anna Echberg writes a capital story, "Brown's Retreat." From the posthumous papers of Gen. G. F. Shepley, is given a chapter of "Incidents of the Capture of Richmond." The Reminiscences of the Van Buren Administration will interest old readers, and both interest and instruct younger ones. Several good poems, reviews of many recent books, and a variety of charming little essays in the Contributors' Club, complete an excellent number of the Atlantic.

THE BLUNDERS OF THE SOLID SOUTH.
The Gazette proposes to show its readers why the Northern voters may, with good reason and without any ungenerous thought toward the people of the South, refuse to place the federal power in the hands of the Democratic party so long as they hold for their ally what is called the "Solid South."

One of the chief reasons why the country should not trust the Democrats and the Solid South with federal power, lies in the subversion of the Southern politicians to the worst element of the Democratic party in the North. Another very important reason why the country will not and cannot trust the Executive branch of the government in the hands of the Democratic party is that the politicians of the South, the men who would be most generously rewarded by the success of the Democratic party in the election of 1880. One of the great blunders of the Solid South is that it does not improve the opportunity to rule and overrule the Democrats in the North, and show the people that they prefer national prosperity to political power, and permanent peace to turmoil and election frauds. The South has a clear majority of the Democrats in both houses of Congress, and has the power to rule the party, and to make the policy which the party should pursue. The Southern members and Senators have the numerical strength to control the Northern members and Senators; to reject their policies if they seem unwise; to prescribe better policies and carry them into effect.

It is because the South does not prefer material prosperity to political power; because it does not desire permanent peace rather than election excitement and frauds; because it will not compel the Northern Democrats to adopt a wiser course—it is for these reasons that the great mass of thoughtful and sensible voters in the North have come to the conclusion that the Solid South ought not to be trusted or even sympathized with. There is no adequate excuse for this course of the South. It is a blunder which has lost them the confidence of their sincerest friends in the North, for the reason that the Northern men say, and say justly, that the Solid South makes up the majority of the Democratic party, and can reform the Northern Democrats if it would. It has the power to compel Democrats of the North to become honest, but has not used it. It has the power to put in the minority the ignorant, reckless, turbulent, and unscrupulous element in the party, but has failed to do it.

The South makes another blunder in not allowing the people there to divide into two parties,—in not giving every man the right to vote as he pleases and to belong to whichever party he desires. It is also a grave blunder on the part of the South that it has chosen to remain solidly Democratic, and has thus allied itself with the worst element of that party. This is to condemn itself in the eyes of all sensible and patriotic Northern men, no matter to what party these may lean. For such men say to the South, "If you choose to exercise your political power in a mass you are bound to show the utmost good sense and patriotism, and to ally yourselves only with the soberest and wisest men in the North." The South may be as solid as it likes, but let it be solid for good government, for material prosperity, for permanent peace, for lasting patriotism, and for free and honest elections.

A CARD.
To the Electors of Rock County:
Having encouraged some of my personal friends that I would become a candidate for the office of Sheriff during the present canvass, I now desire to state publicly that inasmuch as I have neither the time nor the disposition to canvass the county, or elbow or button-hole my friends for the nomination, I must decline to be a candidate for the Sheriff's office. Some of the other candidates in the field claim that I am able to live without it, and fully carrying in their judgment, I take this opportunity to make a declination, and to thank you, my friends, one and all, for your confidence and esteem, and all past favors, and remain yours, sincerely,
R. T. PEMBER.

TERRIBLE DISASTER.

Burning of the Steamer Seawanhaka—Fifty Lives Lost.

New York, June 28.—A terrible disaster occurred here to-day causing the loss of fifty lives, it is feared. The steamer Seawanhaka, running in the summer months from Peck slip, in this city, to Glen Cove, Long Island, was steaming up East river, past Ward's Island, at 4:30 p.m. when she was startled by a sharp, loud explosion on the lower deck, near the engine room. The explosion was followed immediately by fire. The flames broke out underneath the pilot house and spread with great rapidity through the state rooms in the middle part of the boat. The greatest confusion occurred among the passengers and crew of the boat. Persons who were on the forward part of the boat at the time of the disaster crowded toward the bow to escape the heat of the flames, and those on the backward part fled to the stern. The panic was so great that women and children were knocked down and trampled on the decks, or were pushed over the railings into the water. Many of the men jumped overboard. Some of them were drowned; others swam ashore. The Seawanhaka was under full headway at the time of the accident, and the fire did not decrease her speed at once. The engineer, Edward Weisfield, with his garments on fire, but on seeing the condition of the vessel, he returned to his post for a time, and endeavored to keep the paddle wheels in motion. The flames gained the upper decks in so short a time that it was impossible to lower any of the life boats. The life-preservers were also stored in the central part of the boat, and most of them were soon beyond reach. The captain of the steamer, Charles P. Smith, who acted as pilot, showed the greatest coolness and bravery during the panic. He was in the pilot-house when the flames were first discovered, and he determined to run the vessel ashore. He turned her bow toward the shore of Ward's Island, but remembering that the shore there was rocky, and fearing that the boat might strike and rebound back into the stream, he changed his course toward the meadows of a small, marshy island a little to the north of Ward's Island. The flames crept up about the pilot house, but the captain remained at his post and kept the vessel to the shore. The flames which stopped moving and the boat drifted slowly with no propelling force except its momentum. Captain Smith's face and hands were blistered by the flames which crept on him every moment, but he kept hold of the wheel until the prow of the steamer stuck fast in the muddy shore of the broken meadow.

There were about 350 persons on board. All went down to the lower deck, where a fire alarm rang out and flames were discovered bursting through the pilot house. The officers and crew were ordered to the lower deck, and the passengers were told to get down. The boat was grounded on a bar about 200 feet from shore. Steamer Granite State, of the Hartford Line, passing at the time, picked up thirteen passengers and one body which landed at Westchester.

Such an Oresco rescued a majority of the passengers and proceeded with them to College Point. Those without life preservers saved themselves by clinging to the guards, paddles, and other scattered parts of the boat.

DEMOCRATIC DEVILRY.

WASHINGTON, June 27.—After the murder of Dixon in Yazoo City by Barkdale, Frank P. Dixon, brother of the murdered man, was driven out of the State by the Democrats who promised to kill him if he remained. He came to this city and has lived here since that time. The widow of his brother and her six young children remained at her old home. Frank P. Dixon received telegrams yesterday that Mrs. Dixon was at the point of death and asking him to return to see her before she died. At first they were withheld from him by his friends, who feared that his return would cause his life to be taken by those who had before promised to kill him, but when he secured them he decided to go home if it should appear that there was any probability that he could reach Yazoo City before the death of Mrs. Dixon. He is now awaiting information on this point. He knows the great danger which may attend a visit to his home, but will risk it in order to see his murdered brother's widow before she dies.

WHITTAKER.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—Whittaker's case will be left untouched until Secretary Ramsey's return from the West. He will take no action until he receives the Judge Advocate General's report, and he cannot consider that document until he gets back, as the report will not be ready for several days. In the meantime Whittaker will remain at the Military Academy.

FINLEY.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—Henry H. Finley returned from the Cincinnati convention yesterday. He swaggers through the principal streets of Washington to-day with the unblushing assurance for which he is so noted. He does not appear to be conscious of the fact that a committee of the House of Representatives, composed of seven of its ablest members, four of them prominent Democrats, after weeks of laborious investigation, pronounced him the author of an anonymous letter and a principal in a cowardly plot as infamous as any ever concocted. He went to Cincinnati as a hanger-on of the Field crew, presumably because that was the only way to get openly need money to effect the nomination of its candidate. Finley having failed to secure the payment of the $550 bill for services rendered, presented by him to the investigating committee, is very needy. He returned baffled and defeated, but he does not show it. He knows no shame and no defeat.

COMMITTED TO JAIL.

ELKHORN, June 28.—Clifford Stoodley, the young man who shot Arthur Colton at Geneva Lake last night, was brought here to-day by Marshal M. Richards of that village for examination before Justice Lyon on a charge of assassination with intent to kill, and a continuance was granted until July 7, to await the result of the injuries inflicted, which the surgeons predict may prove fatal in a few hours. The following are the facts in the case: Stoodley and Colton were both employed by the Washington Ice Company, and the quarrel originated on Saturday about remarks each had made about the other's sister. In conversation with a friend of Stoodley's on Saturday evening, Colton had called Stoodley a son of a b—, which came to the knowledge of Stoodley, who, meeting Colton on the steamerboat wharf on Sunday, told him to take it back or he would put a ball through him. Colton said he had nothing to take back, whereupon Stoodley fired, the ball entering Colton's side just below the shoulder. Stoodley is 18 years of age, his father lives at Geneva Lake, and Colton is 20 years of age, a son of Ebenezer Colton, of Spring Prairie township, this county. The prisoner was committed to jail in default of $4,000 bail.

INGERSOLL.

His Opinion of Hancock's Candidacy.
WASHINGTON, June 28.—Colonel Robert Ingersoll said to-day that he considered Hancock weaker to-day than when nominated, and that he would be weaker three months hence than now. The Democratic ticket was composed of indigo and popperas, Hancock representing the blue. The Republican ticket was composed of blue and not Hancock, and they would begin the campaign in Maine, and carry it on successfully until victory was won in November.

PRESIDENT HAYES.

NEW HAVEN, June 28.—President Hayes visited Branford to-day, and held a reception in a room in the Fitchburg House, suit by his great-grandfather, Ezekiel Hayes. The house is of brick, made by the President's great-grandfather some 150 years ago. The President made some remarks, detailing what he had been able to learn concerning his ancestors. An old ax manufactured by his great-grandfather was shown with a Branford resident said presented to him.

A Remarkable Blind Man.

On Thursday, the 16th instant, there died in the town of Burlington, James Goodale, who from his birth, during a life of nearly 90 years, had been totally blind. In early childhood, however, Mr. Goodale said that the darkness was in a few instances broken by faint glimmerings of light. Of four children, he and a sister were blind, the others could see. The sister, though at first possessed of ordinary vision, soon by a mysterious change, became wholly deprived of sight. In absolute darkness, the ordinary employment of work-a-day life would seem impracticable, but this blind man would swing an ax with the dexterity of a woodman, and actually felled trees; he was an accomplished grain threshing, and would frequently go alone a distance of two miles to thresh for the Burlington farmers, climbing the mows to throw down the grain; he could hoe corn and garden stuff as well as anybody, having no trouble to distinguish the weeds; he would set a hundred bean poles with more accuracy than most people who can see, would load hay beautifully, and was so good a mechanic that he manufactured yokes and other farm articles with success. He had an excellent memory and was an authority on facts and dates. He could generally tell the time of day or night within a few minutes. One instance is given when he slept over one day and awoke at evening, thinking it was morning. For once he ate supper for breakfast, but when informed of his mistake slept another twelve hours in order to get straight again. He was familiar with forest trees, and knew just where to go for any timber desired. He could direct men who tried to find a chestnut, a maple or an oak, and there to go for berries. He was a good mathematician, and could compute accurately and rapidly. In olden days he was quite musically inclined, and like most blind people, he had a genius in that direction. He was at one time leader of the Presbyterian choir in that place. For two years he and the blind sister kept house together, though she and the other members of the family have long since passed away.—Waterbury

A Decline in the Population of New Orleans.

From the New Orleans Democrat.
It is surprising to learn that a rapid glance over the returns makes it appear probable that the tenth census will show the population of this city to be only 180,000, an actual falling off of 10 per cent. in the past five years, something that has never before occurred to any American city.

There is something even more alarming, and this is the political effect of this apparent decrease in our population. The next apportionment will give the States one Congressman to each 175,000 of population. It is certain that by this apportionment Louisiana will lose one Congressman, while if our population falls below 187,500, we will lose two—one-third of our delegation, and be reduced to the feeble representation of four members. According to the census of this city, New Orleans will show a falling off of 20,000 people, so that it will require an increase of 80,000 in the country parishes to give us five Congressmen.

The Crows' Convention.

From the Fottsville Miner's Journal.
James Hillman, a respectable and well-to-do farmer, living between Orwigburg and Leaningville, is the authority for the following remarkable story: Mr. Hillman has on his farm fifteen acres of timber, which is joined by two other places of woodland of about the same size. One morning early last week Mr. Hillman's woods were attracted by large flocks of crows which came from the south, and, as if by common consent, settled in the woods mentioned above. During the ensuing three days the crows in the woods were reinforced by new arrivals, until several thousands were present, and the noise they made attracted the attention of people for miles around. Sentimental crows were posted on the defenses around the woods, and through them the approach of a man or boy was quickly communicated to the body of crows. The crows remained in this patch of woods until Monday morning, when they all left about the same time, taking their course of flight in a northwesterly direction. They left the woods in flocks containing two or three hundred each, at intervals of five or ten minutes, and the departure of one of these flocks was the signal for the remaining birds. They all departed in the same direction, and the last flock took wing about an hour after the first started. Since then there has not been a crow seen in the neighborhood. Mr. Hillman says that during their stay in his woods the crows did not commit any depredations on the neighboring cornfields, and but few of them ever ventured beyond the confines of the timber.

existed in our midst then now. Every one able and willing to work, seems to be employed. Laboring men are fixing up their houses generally, and far less credit is being asked for than formerly. Our city is in a very prosperous condition, taken as a whole, and one only—our river—epidemic this summer will be a miracle truly. Our depraved, demoralized river—AL. MOUT.

Chest Development and Consumption.

It is stated that during the last twenty-five years not a single singer has died of consumption at St. Petersburg, although this disease has outstripped all others and now holds first place among the causes of death in the Russian capital. From this and other facts Dr. Vasiliev draws an inference in favor of the exercise involved in singing, as a preventative measure against consumption. There would seem to be room for question as to the relation of cause and effect. It may either happen that singers are not consumptive because they can use their chest and throat freely, or that consumptive persons are not singers because the weakness which prevents disease incapacitates the chest and throat for exertion. Both of these hypotheses are true up to a certain point, but neither holds good in all cases. A very little observation will suffice to show that a good singing voice may co-exist with a weak or diseased chest, whereas the perfectly healthy may be unable to sing.

It was some forty years ago a common practice to give consumptive patients a specially arranged tube to breathe through with a view to exercising the chest. We venture to hope the experiment will not be repeated. Chest development cannot be accomplished in a manner consistent with health in the growing days of childhood, and then the most natural and convenient methods of exercise are the best. Later on in life great mischief may be done by unduly straining the muscles of the throat and those of the chest, thereby the perils of the lungs by violent exertion, for which the organs of the voice have not been early trained.

CHICAGO LETTER.

Special Correspondence of the Gazette.

Chicago, June 25—Plenty of property for sale in Chicago at the present time—but only at good prices. Hard time figures are not accepted any longer. Our lately battered land owners, have taken up nearly per cent of their incomes during the past year. Many gentlemen from St. Louis are in the city at present, mostly merchants, purchasing goods.
Those of them who come here to trade say that they can do far better in Chicago, than in any of the Eastern cities, and that St. Louis is no where in regard to its wholesale trade—when compared to Chicago, in either competition or prices.
Something like fifty citizens from the City of the big bridge have left there and started in business here, during the past six months, and the prediction is, that "still there's more to follow," including their families. Those gentlemen are of sound sense, and eminent business qualifications, but whose right have been in Chicago, and under a bushel, whereas in Chicago, they will find full scope for every activity they may possess, and in coming years will fully realize that they made a wise choice.

St. Louis feels very largely, that her population is no larger, only 375,000, while Chicago is estimated exceedingly over her—only 480,000; but when the correct returns are all in, no doubt we will show up 500,000 at the least. Over 20,000 of our business men live in suburban towns, and are virtually Chicago men, with all that that name implies. Chicago is a Cook county, and the city is not Chicago.
St. Louis has her large suburban villages inclosed in her census returns, it is said; and those towns were actually in her limits—her limits extended so far out over the open country, in order to make her appear as a city of some importance; so that if these towns had not been included, and her actual population given, she is far behind Chicago in everything—population, wealth, business, improvements, energy and enterprise, that it is eminently unwise for anyone in future to make any comparison between the two. In 1890, Chicago will have nearly 1,000,000 inhabitants, while St. Louis may not show over 450,000.

The real estate market in this city needs repose. It has to a certain extent been reorganized on an excellent basis, and this is true over the country at large. Nothing should ever occur in national affairs to unsettle finances, or a change of methods.
The nation is now in a sound commercial prosperity. Money is plenty. Economy has been practiced by our people for years and it is now the desire that this state of affairs should continue.

Fewer loans have been made during the last twelve months, more business blocks erected than in former years, the owners having money of their own to build, and loans are now the exception.

DR. HOWE'S TESTIMONY.
Mr. JAMES I. FELLOWS, Pittsfield, Mass., March, 1872.
Dear Sir:—During the past two years, I have given your Compound Syrup of Hypophosphites a fair trial, and I am now a confirmed believer in its merits and able to speak with confidence of its efficacy. In restoring persons suffering from emaciation and the debility following ill health, it has done wonders. I constantly recommend its use in all affections of the throat and lungs. In several cases of emaciated children, it has given relief, and the patients are fast recovering. Among these are consumptive and old bronchial subjects, who are diseased have reason to expect recovery. For impaired digestion, and in fact for debility from any cause, I know of nothing equal to it. Its direct effect on the nervous system, renders it suitable for the majority of diseases. mydawid

TUESDAY, JUNE 29, 1880.

MILTON.

—On Friday the Spring term of the graded school closed and instead of the usual exercises a picnic dinner was served at the school building and the pupils had an enjoyable holiday. A pleasant feature of the day was the presentation of a pair of handsome vases to Miss Johnson, by the pupils of the primary department, and a toilet set to Miss Seaneer, by the scholars. Miss Johnson closed her labors in the school on that day, and both pupils and parents regret it. During her long connection with the school she has had uninterrupted success and has gained the love and esteem of every scholar and the respect of the parents.

—C. M. Morse, of Lake Benton, is here for no other purpose than to have a good time with his classmates and acquaintances during commencement. Charley has "shook" the art preservative and become a member of the firm of Brown and Morse, dealers in all that pertains to a general store. We are glad to meet him and so is somebody else.

—Miss Fannie M. Hallock, daughter of Rev. L. Hallock, a former resident here, recently graduated at the St. Louis Normal School. The Daily Post Dispatch of that city says "Miss Hallock read an essay on 'Climb, But Heights are Cold.' It had the virtue of brevity and was well read. Miss Hallock is one of the most intelligent and studious young ladies in the school."

—Frank L. McCracken, agent of the St. Paul company, at Wadsworth, Illinois, was in town last night.

—Charles Richmond and wife, of Minneapolis, Minnesota, are in town visiting their father, Asa Weaver, Esq.

—C. W. Crumb, who has been in the employ of the St. Paul Company, at Mason City, Iowa, since he left this village, is in town to enjoy the last of good things incident to the present week.

—Miss Alice McCracken, Principal of the Emerald Grove School, has finished her labors for the present school year and is at home.

—Prof John D. Bond and wife, of St. Paul, Minn., arrived in town last Saturday. They intend to stay here some time and enjoy a good visit with their relatives and friends, who are very much pleased to meet them.

—Mrs Mary Barrows, matron of the St. Louis Home of the Friendless, a former resident of our town, has recently been dangerously ill, and for some time her recovery was not expected. She is now convalescent.

—John Alexander and Miss Margaret Rogers took the cars at Thursday for St. Paul, where they will remain about two weeks as the guest of Mr. W. S. Alexander.

—The mowing did not do as good a job on the square as we anticipated, but we hope that our item of last week will be true some time, otherwise we shall place no confidence in a Pathmaster's word.

—Mrs Dennis Williams returned from Fort Dodge, Iowa, Wednesday night.

—Miss George Bassett, of Union, New York, was in town last week visiting relatives.

—Doctor Borden is making some extensive improvements on his house, the most noticeable being a dormer window on the east side of the wing.

—The election suit of Stockman vs. McCracken on trial before Justice Osbourne last Wednesday, resulted in favor of the plaintiff and the warrant of execution was issued. Goodrich appeared for Stockman.

—Horace Craudall and wife, of Ahwah, Rhode Island, are in town visiting relatives.

—The Milton house was the scene of an untimely conflagration Friday. An ash-jail caused the trouble, but it was not serious.

—Orin Sprague has built a new house on his farm. The upright is 15 by 35 with a wing 18 by 28. Weaver and son are doing the work. The above is a fact strange as it may seem.

—Some weeks ago Fitch Brown lost his pocket book containing $35. Last week it was found among some clothing with its contents intact. He thinks the person who took it was conscience-stricken and returned it.

and plunged wagon, farmer and load into the stream.

In Chelsea, England, a sparrow was observed to fly around a cage containing a canary, then to perch upon the top and twitter to the bird within. After a few moments he flew away, but returned bearing a worm, which he dropped in the cage. Similar facts were received after a while at the same house.

Saved by her pet dogs, is the experience of Miss Priscilla Harrison, of San Francisco. She went out for a walk, recently, and for eight days was not seen. When found she was far up in a mountain, and the party was attracted by the barking of two dogs that had accompanied her. It is thought that the dogs saved her life by keeping her warm at night—one sleeping on her feet, the other by her side.

While boating on the Wakulla Spring, Florida, a lady dropped a ring from her finger, and it could be seen sinking in the clear water. When near the bottom, a trout was seen to start at it, swallow it and disappear. An ingenious fellow borrowed another ring, fastened it to a hook and fished for the trout. After paying out ninety feet of line he was successful, the trout was hauled to the surface, cut open, and the ring taken out.

A mocking bird had its nest in an orange tree near the house of a little child in Jacksonville, Florida. The child fed it with crumbs on the piazza, and was rewarded with a song. The child fell sick and died. The bird, perched on the window blind, poured forth one of its most thrilling songs, and then flew away. Several hours afterward the body of the bird was found dead upon the piazza, and was placed in the coffin of its friend and buried within the same grave.

Do! was a monkey, brought by James Wardlaw, of Galt, Canada, from India. It suffered from toothache for several days. One day the pain was more than ordinary severe, and the monkey resolved to undergo a dental operation. It found a string, fastened it around the aching tooth, seized the end of the string with its fore feet, drew up one of its hind legs between its fore feet, and gave a sudden shove, which jerked the tooth out and sent it flying half way across the room.

Colorado spiders are not to be laughed at. In a cave near Buena Vista they are the size of small birds, and they make a strange sound while weaving their web. While looking at the cave a miner examined the webs. Their strands were about the size of a No. 12 thread, and he thought they could be used for thread. Having a needle, he drew off one of the strands and found that it would just fit. Sewing on a loose button, he found it as strong as silk, and that it answered every purpose.

Female Dress Reform.
A correspondent writes from Leipzig that a society composed of fashionable women has been formed there with a view to discouraging extravagance of dress, and any and all superfluous expenditure for adornment or display. The members are pledged not to wear jewels, false hair, trains, double skirts, or anything not required by consideration of decency and self-respect. Patterns of single dresses with very little trimming have been devised, and certain maids-makers have agreed to follow these patterns rigorously, whenever they are asked to. The members are persuaded that they will be able to work a thorough reform, and do great good by causing rules of economy to be widely adopted in that city. As many of the women are rich and of high social position, they think that their influence will be felt and their example followed throughout Bavaria. We hope that they may be justified in their opinion; but we have shuddering doubts. Something of the sort has taken place in an Ohio town, though there the motive is theological. A number of young women have organized themselves into a Circle of the Saviour, and they designate it, and have discarded gowns and garments of every kind. Recently one of them was found in the street in the early morning in her night gown, and not long after in a still worse state of wardrobe. She was arrested, properly drapped, and pronounced insane. Probably she is not so. When young women are so thoroughly old women have discarded gowns and surrendered the pomp of clothes, there is no reason to question their mental soundness. Some women are not in that line. —New York Times.
